Coming to the aid of good Samaritans

A proposed law would give legal cover to passersby who help out in an emergency.

March 04, 2009

Coming to the rescue of so-called good Samaritans, new state legislation would give much-needed legal protection to passersby who help in an emergency.

In the final days of 2008, the California Supreme Court ruled against a woman, Lisa Torti, who pulled a co-worker from a car after an accident. The injured woman, Alexandra Van Horn, was left a paraplegic and claimed that Torti's actions were to blame. Torti countered that she was covered by the state's good-Samaritan law, which shields from liability anyone "who in good faith, and not for compensation, renders emergency care at the scene of an emergency."

The court's majority responded with a puzzling reading of the state and concluded that the law covers only medical care, not rescue. An amateur do-gooder could, for example, be found liable for accidentally breaking a man's leg while pulling him from a burning building, but not for botching the job of treating the broken limb. The situation clearly calls for legislative intervention, and Assemblyman Mike Feuer (D-Los Angeles) provides it with AB 83. The bill would extend good-Samaritan protection to rescuers, though not in cases of gross negligence or willful misconduct. It also would slightly weaken existing protections for medical aid by applying the same exceptions.

Had this law been in place at the time, Torti's actions might still have been subject to liability. Pulling Van Horn from the vehicle may have been a terrible mistake. Emergency protocol is to avoid moving accident victims -- in order to prevent spinal damage -- unless there is imminent danger from, say, a car fire. (Torti said she feared the car would explode.) Considering that both women reportedly had been out partying beforehand, issues of impaired judgment might be raised as well. But the standard for a finding of gross negligence is high enough -- the action must violate accepted ideas of reasonable behavior -- that most errors by a well-meaning person would be protected. That's important, because amateurs do make mistakes, sometimes stupid or harmful mistakes, and yet most of the time their well-intentioned intervention is helpful.

A majority of states have "good Sam" laws that exempt gross negligence or misconduct from protection, but there aren't enough statistics to know whether such wording has discouraged any would-be helpers. Luckily for our society, most people act on the instinct to help without worrying about the fine points of the law. The main issue is that after the Supreme Court ruling, Californians were left with a loud message that their heroism might backfire. Feuer's legislation would send a new message: that random acts of kindness are encouraged and protected.

AB-83 Torts: personal liability immunity. (2009-2010)

Assembly Bill No. 83

CHAPTER 77

An act to amend Section 1799.102 of the Health and Safety Code, relating to personal liability, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

[ Approved by Governor August 05, 2009. Filed with Secretary of State August 06, 2009. ]

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 83, Feuer. Torts: personal liability immunity.

Existing law provides that any person who in good faith, and not for compensation, renders emergency medical care at the scene of an emergency shall not be liable for any civil damages resulting from any act or omission.

This bill would instead provide that medical, law enforcement, and emergency personnel who in good faith, and not for compensation, render emergency medical or nonmedical care at the scene of an emergency shall not be liable for any civil damages resulting from any act or omission.

This bill would also provide that any person, not including medical, law enforcement, and emergency personnel, who in good faith, and not for compensation, renders emergency medical or nonmedical care or assistance at the scene of an emergency shall not be liable for any civil damages resulting from any act or omission, as long as that act or omission does not constitute gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct.

This bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as an urgency statute.

Vote: 2/3 Appropriation: no Fiscal Committee: no Local Program: no

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA DO ENACT AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 1799.102 of the Health and Safety Code is amended to read:

1799.102. (a) No person who in good faith, and not for compensation, renders emergency medical or nonmedical care at the scene of an emergency shall be liable for any civil damages resulting from any act or omission. The scene of an emergency shall not include emergency departments and other places where medical care is usually offered. This subdivision applies only to the medical, law enforcement, and emergency personnel specified in this chapter.

(b) (1) It is the intent of the Legislature to encourage other individuals to volunteer, without compensation, to assist others in need during an emergency, while ensuring that those volunteers who provide care or assistance act responsibly.

(2) Except for those persons specified in subdivision (a), no person who in good faith, and not for compensation, renders emergency medical or nonmedical care or assistance at the scene of an emergency shall be liable for civil damages resulting from any act or omission other than an act or omission constituting gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct. The scene of an emergency shall not include emergency departments and other places where medical care is usually offered. This subdivision shall not be construed to alter existing protections from liability for licensed medical or other personnel specified in subdivision (a) or any other law.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to change any existing legal duties or obligations, nor does anything in this section in any way affect the provisions in Section 1714.5 of the Civil Code, as proposed to be amended by Senate Bill 39 of the 2009–10 Regular Session of the Legislature.

(d) The amendments to this section made by the act adding subdivisions (b) and (c) shall apply exclusively to any legal action filed on or after the effective date of that act.

SEC. 2. This act is an urgency statute necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting the necessity are:

Because the state has long encouraged Californians to assist others facing danger in an emergency, and the ability to do so without fear of potential suit has been thrown into question by the recent California Supreme Court decision of Van Horn v. Watson, (2008) 45 Cal.4th 322, decided on December 18, 2008, this legislation clarifying the intent of the Legislature needs to go into effect immediately so as to avoid any confusion in this important area of the law.
